At the start it seemed as Williams would wade through his old a rival, but Niles kept pegging as he of the matches promptly on scheduled graph to the one composed of the California youngsters, Axel Gravem and Robert Kinsey. These two had met earlier in the afternoon in a blitter struggle in the singles, which terminated only when Kinsey, exhausted, was unable to continue. After battling for more than two hours Kinsey defaulted in the third set of their match, when the score stood 6—7, 6—3, 8—all.

Richards Defaults.

This match was the real big feature of the afternoon. Gravem had made a great hit with the crowd on the opening day's play through his remarkable work in his first time on turf. Naturally the gallery was anxious to see how the other young Californian would shape up in his debut. It was coincidental that he should have to play his team mate on his very first time out. This was due to the fact that Vincent Richards, who was drawn arguing Kincey failed to nut. tween the young Californians turned out to be. The match recalled another such battle here in 1915, when Robert Lindley

PIRST SET.

The match had not gone very far when it became evident that it would be a hammer and tongs affair right up to the finish. Gravem started the service and took the opening game, which he followed by breaking through Kinney's service. Kinney showed a certain scariness of the gruss which led the onlookers to believe that he would prove easy pickings for Gravem, who had showed up so well yesterday.

AT SHACKAMAXON

Isaac Mackie Has Low Practice Round With 76-Qualify for Tourney To-day.

Advance indications are that quite a softer spot than the Shackamaxon course might have been selected for the qualifying round for the metropolitan district of the Professional Golfers Association tournament. At least yesterday's batting around the course leff little reason to believe that the boys are going to find Shackamaxon a setup for low scoring.

A large percentage of the field that will tee up this morning travelled over yesterday and took a turn of the course. Isaac Mackie, the Cance Brook professional, came in with the best card for the round. He had a 76, which is four strokes above par for the eighteen holes. Alex Piris, secretary of the association, reports that the course is in fine shape. Yet the low round at four strokes over par doesn't compare very favorably with the 58 that Emmet French clicked off at North Shore in warming up for the metropolitan open.

As expected, practically all of the professional talent of the district will be on hand for the frolic starting this morning. By last night quite a number of additional entries over the list of thirty-three given out Monday had been received. The late dist includes Tom McNamara, Tom Kerrigan, Isaac Mackie, Peter O'Hara, Jöe Mitchell and William Scott. Furthermore Secretary Pirle said he had information that Aleck Smith, Jimmy Maiden, John Williams and several others would be present this morning.

A battle royal is anticipated for the twelve places allotted to the district for the tournament to be played some time noon will be given over to an eighteen hole qualifying round, the best thirty-two to qualify. The first round of match play will follow in the afternoon. Match play will continue through Sat-

William B. Boulton of 100 Broadway plans a trip next menth to the Masti-gouche Club, where he will take a chance on "some of those five pound square tall brook trout" with a 34 ounce rod. Croaker in the Game to the Last,

Croaker in the Game to the Last.

I note two letters which appeared lately concerning the comparative merits of the weakfish and croaker.

My first experience at the sait water game came last year, when two kind friends took me down to the Hook. I was told that this fishing was unique to one who had never before fished with the short rod and lead.

I must confess that the sport was thrilling—long to be remembered—and I look forward to another excursion.

On the first trip to the lower bay we took eighteen fish, four of which were croakers. The second trip was productive of forty-two. At the present writing the number of croakers cannot be remembered. I shall not soon farget the first "weak" hooked. To me it put up a wonderful battle, but this was short lived. While it lasted the angier had his hands full. The croaker, however, while not so "swift" in his fighting, seemed to be more powerful.

For a tyro at the "sail" game the latter fish appeared the more determined in his fight for freedom than did the former. Our friends the croaker was in the game to the last and swung hard! SOOTCH.

Bels are very fond of soft crabs. The letter would be more plentiful and cheaper if it were not for cels.

Professional crab gatchers vow that hard shell crabs try to protect soft crabs from cels and that it is not unusual to see a big eel steal up and grab a soft crab from underneath a hard shell crab. There is a big demand for all kinds of sea food along the north and south shores of Long Island. Fish dealers say that they sell more sea bass, weakfish, porgles.
